Your First Time in UCPath

UCPath is our systemwide payroll and personnel system, and you’ll have some set-up tasks to complete the first time you log in. All employees use the online portal to access personal information related to pay statements, W2s, health & benefits, retirement, and leave balances. During the fall, the portal is also where employees choose benefits during Open Enrollment.

To login go to https://ucpath.universityofcalifornia.edu/

Once you get through Duo and into UCPath, here’s what you’ll need to do:

Update your personal profile (click to see preview)

It’s voluntary, allowing you to self-identify as to veteran and disability status, race, ethnicity, gender identity and sexual orientation. You can “decline to state” for any question, though this information provides important data about UC employee diversity and informs UC’s efforts to create an inclusive environment.

Set up five security questions (click to see preview)

This helps verify your identity and prevent unauthorized access or changes to your financial, health benefits, or personal information.

With that out of the way, you are now able to use the UCPath Online Self-Service Portal and here are some suggested things-to-do:

Verify your personal information and update if needed

Sign up for Direct Deposit (click to see preview)

If already signed up, verify the information or update if needed. You can designate up to three financial institutions for direct deposit.

Review your Earnings Statement

Earnings statements will generally be available in UCPath the day before payday. It is always a good practice to review your Earnings Statement each payday.

Visit the UCPath Website to see a breakdown of items to review
